One day in Bathurst New Brunswick me Emma Bujold my friend Becky Smith her mom and her little sister Keira had to go to Wal-Mart to pick up a birthday gift for Keira friends party.

So we arrived to Wal-Mart the place was packed we started to plow through a bunch of old ladies with their carts in the way of the next aisle I could not listen to bingo night any more so we asked the old ladies if they could move over the grumpiest one turned around and in a split second she smacked Becky's mom in the stomach with her old lady satchel and yelled get your own aisle!!!

We walked away with Becky's mom mumbling [old hag] while holding her stomach. Don't worry Mrs. Smith she's just cranky.....You bet ya she's cranky. Passing Frank the store manager we saw people mopping the floor can't they wait until everyone is gone.

Ok here we are the toy aisle we grabbed some Barbie and got out of there. Walking back to the cash Becky's mom asked Keira where the party was Keira was not there. Becky Emma you go check those four aisles she pointed to the electronics. I will go check the rest meet me at the cash in ten minutes.

Me and Becky each searched two aisles. I viscaulay searched every end of my two aisles and Becky did the same. No sigh of Keira. I'll have to admit I was scared I mean what if I never saw her again. So we went to the cash to meet Becky's mom. I was nervous, I was expecting Keira to be standing right in front of me.

Let's try all Keira's favorite aisles. Ok Emma you go check the shampoo and conditioner aisle, Becky you and me will check the patio furniture department. Meet us at the cash in ten minutes. I walked down the aisle, I have to say I had to smell some shampoo bottles, there were a lot of jasmine shampoo but no Keira. It was not ten minutes yet so I decided to walk down the toy aisle and there I saw Keira hugging a bunch of Furby's. I grabbed Keira and ran to the cash in relief. In the end, we made it to the birthday party only five minutes late.
